

The Mark Lomax Trio

Featuring Edwin Bayard, Dean Hulett, & Mark Lomax, II

Tapestry

"...trio picks up the pieces from the 1960s collision of black power and avant-jazz while dispensing with everything superfluous."- Tom Hull

"My Tapestry series represents my artistic journey and motivation to continue to evolve as an artist and human. Inspired by both the history of quilts in African American art and the intricate fabrics I saw during my artist residency in Ankara, Turkey, these pieces inspire me to keep pushing my art and process in new and exciting ways."- Lance Johnson

Tapestry is the live recording of a four-movement tone poem inspired by four pieces in artist, Lance Johnson's, Tapestry series. Each piece of art serves as a graphic score interpreted by the ensemble. The Mark Lomax Trio featuring saxophonist Edwin Bayard, bassist Dean Hulett, and drummer Mark Lomax, II draw parallels between the music and Johnson's visual representation of our most fundamental desire to communicate the truth of our humanity. The messages in the work range from political calls for equity, justice, and freedom to wholistic expressions of our collective humanity focused on spirit, love, life, and happiness. Lomax says, "[T]his work is our expression of the connection we feel to the lineage of brilliant artists who have paved the way for us all, and the hope that the world will soon come to appreciate how important the beautifully complex tapestry of humanity truly is!"

The Mark Lomax Trio is inspired by all of the seemingly disparate ways humanity is connected from the past to the present. The inspiration is evident in this evening of music performed and recorded for the culture.
